

tips for child care providers for quick and easy gDiapering

- Insert gRefill or gCloth by pressing it into the snap-in liner, which is already snapped into the little gPants.
- Secure velcro in the back, away from little hands. Do not over-tighten.
- gDiapers fit up snug between the legs. Liner rests in the crease of baby's leg just like underwear.
- gDiapers, like all diapers need to be changed every 2-4 hours for a dry, happy baby.
- Poop does get on the snap-in liner, but rarely soils the little gPant.

disposing of soiled gDiapers: flush, compost, or toss

Flushing typically isn't the most convenient option for larger childcare centers, but gDiapers are still easier on the earth, even if tossed.

- gDiapers recommends flushing the poop even if you choose to toss the biodegradable gRefill.
- If the snap-in liner is soiled, remove it from the little gPants and put in a wet bag for the parents to take home and launder. Snap in a clean liner for later changes.

tips from gDiapers on-site childcare center

- Keep a bin near the changing station for wet-only biodegradable gRefills. These can then be added to a composter with your center's food scraps and turned into lovely compost for a garden!
- All our gBabies have their own cubbies next to the changing station. Parents keep these stocked with clean gDiapers, which makes diaper changes a breeze.

good news! gDiapers are fully compliant with the diapering requirements set forth by the National Resource Center for Health and Safety in Childcare.
